2022 OSHA Recordkeeping Compliance Update Are You Prepared to Submit Your Data by March 2nd?

The vast majority of employers MUST now submit their injury data directly to the Department of Labor annually. Those who don't comply face extensive fines and comprehensive CAL/OSHA inspections. Employers may start submitting on the first of the new year and have until March 2nd, 2022 to comply.

- Are you preparing your data now?
- Are you aware of the changes to this year's submission rules?
- Are you including COVID-19 cases?
- Are you submitting for the correct locations?
- Could you be over-reporting...or under-reporting?
- Do you know your DART rate and why that matters to CAL/OSHA?
- Do you know what "red flag" data may trigger an inspection?
- Are you aware this data will be going public?

We will also provide an overview of OSHAlogs.com, a dynamic OSHA recordkeeping and injury intelligence platform to help you comply with these new requirements. Best of all, those who attend will receive free access to this software as a gift from UA Insurance!
